Re: Atlantic Coast Pipeline

I am shocked and disappointed to see that the Atlantic Coast Pipeline is going full steam ahead. At a time when our country should be putting its resources into renewable energy, this pipeline is a travesty.

From an environmental standpoint, it is wrong on every level, and there hasn't been enough impartial and thorough environmental impact studies. Why the rush? Also, why has the public not been able to weigh in on this? Why no public hearings? Again, why the rush? Why has everything about this project been conducted behind closed doors? What is Duke Energy and NC's governor got to hide?

This project smacks of special interests. It is being crammed down the throats of our citizenry, our voices being entirely ignored. Furthermore, it is unnecessary and appears to be nothing more than greed for profits at a catastrophic environmental cost in pristine areas, not to mention the destruction of family farms going back generations.

This project needs some serious sunlight. I have many questions with no answers, and now the NC legislature has deemed to take the money that was to be used to mitigate environmental damage (if that's even possible) and has earmarked it for an unfunded school mandate. This entire thing reeks from start to finish. Governor Cooper, I am especially disappointed in you. Duke Energy revealed itself as insensitive to citizens health and our environment with the coal ash debacle. Please stop this now!
